HOW THE NORTH CAROLINA PULSE BEATS .-The following incident affords another striking illustration of the temper of the people of North Carolina: On the 8th a vessel ran the blockade at Cape Fear river. The Colonel in command of a part of the rebel forces detained the vessel at what he called the Quarantine. The people of Wilmington demanded of the Colonel to surrender the cargo to them. The people of Wilmington demanded of the Colonel to surrender the cargo to them. He imperiously refused. They called upon Gov. Vance, who finally got on a stall in the market-house and addressed them. He said they should be protected. The Governor made a formal demand of Gen. Whiting to deliver the vessel to him at the Wilmington whar?. The General hesitated, the people became infuriated, and finally Gon. Whiting, to appease them, acceded to the demand of the Governor. After this the people demanded the removal of the Colonel. This was also granted. Clearly, the pulse of North Carolina begins to beat with a healthy tone. QUEER INDIFFERENCE.—The Kansas Journal relates the following anecdote about a woman of doubtful loyalty, who was recently before the Provost Marshal: "She gave as an evience of her loyalty that her husband had been killed in the One-Hundred-and-Sixth Illinois regiment. 'When did your husband go to Illinois?' 'About three years ago.' "That was before the war, was it not?" 'Yes.' 'Why did you not go with him?' 'Well, I didn't like to go off so far with a man I wasn't much acquainted with.' 'You don't mean to say that your husband was so much of a stranger that you did not like to go with him?' 'Yes, I do. I had only been married to him about a year, and I wasn't going to leave my folks and go off to Illinois with a man I didn't know more about." What could he do but

The mischievous youth was accessed, but, on account of his pressing themselves in favor of the rebellion, and have done everything in their power to jured children did not wish to enter into a prosecution.

The government, therefore, if it expends the additional issue in commodities, loses—first, the whole amount of the depreciation existing at the beginning of the issue, also all the additional depreciation produced by its daily expenditure. No bloody battles have been fought; true status. It was, I believe, the universal desire of all Union men that every person should vote who chose, who was qualified by the laws of the State; and yet, because Union men voted the Union Democratic ticket, they are derided and scoffed at by these hypocriti-cal, scurrilous scribblers, and called "spongers," recently. No bloody battles have been fought; but, on the contrary, ever thing is peaceable and quiet. Business seems to be more flourishing than in times of peace. These straws show quite with these welcome changes, Bowling Green is not what it once was. The effects and consequences of war are distinctly written upon her yet. Where the wealthy merchant and grocer once filled his coffers we behold a wreck of ruins. On the neighboring hills where once we viewed wild and romantic scenery are now seen edifices erected for human destruction. Where once large fields, teeming with golden grain, and meadows filled with flocks of herds, attracted the gaze, is seen uncultivated commons dotted by the rude hut of the soldier. Where the lawyer once stood defending his client is seen the outlaw with ball and chain attached, attesting his guilt. But yet Bowling Green is not void of attractions. Will you allow me a little space in your columns that I may do justice to the memory of as brave and gallant an officer as ever offered up his life upon the altar of his country?

It is hardly too much to say that had he failed or faltered in sustaining the cause of the Government and of the Union, or had he other way than he did, the State of Kentucky might have been lost to that cause. Nor can any one doubt that the loyal and nobleatitude of that honored Commonwealth at the present hour, on which the best hopes of the Union may even now hang, is in a large degree ow-ing to his powerful influence, his inspiring apreals, and his unwavering patriotism.

The charm of his manner, the cordiality and generosity of his whole nature, the music of his voice, and the ma ic power of his eloquence, as well in conversation as in formal discourse, will be among the lasting traditions of the circles in which he moved; and his death will be long felt, not only as a great public loss at such a period of his country's need, but as a personal sorrow to all who have enjoyed the privilege of his friendship.

ELIZABETHTOWN, KY., August 31. To the Editors of the Louisville Journal: Having been for some time absent from old Kentucky, we came back on the 29th, and counted on enjoying a little quiet and rest counted on enjoying a little quiet and rest after having been wearied out by attending some half dozen political mass meetings; but alas, man can never foresee the future, for I had scarce composed myself to sleep upon my hard camp pallet when news came that an item would be raised by visiting Elizabethtown. Mounted on a hard-trotting animal of Uncle Sam's, we quickly sped our way to Elizabethtown, where, held in durance vile by Captain Ireland, commanding the Post, we by Captain Ireland, commanding the Post, we found the following named parties: John Ashcraft, Robert Haycraft, David Bethel, Charles M. Patton, and D. M. Stevens, accused of aiding and abetting the treason of the socalled Confederate States. We hurried round and, pencil in hand, endeavored to get ready a report for the Journal of this morning, but evening Col. S. A. Strickland, comm the 50th regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, had a private examination of the accused, but as the press was not admitted, I can give no account of the facts thus elicited; but, from patient inquiry have obtained the following statement, which we consider very accurate: craft, of this county, brought to Elizabethtown thirty-six thousand eight hundred and sixty-one dollars in the so-called Confederate States This, as per agreement, he handed lars. He (Haycraft) agreed to guide Ash-craft through Kentucky, and assist him in making his way through to the rebel lines. It seems that all above mentioned were privy to the intentions of Ashcraft, and were ready rendezvous seemed to be at Bethel's house. On Saturday evening Ashcraft started with Haycraft for a guide, but it seems that Hay-eraft did not make very many endeavors to hasten the trip, but indeed to delay it. From conversation with the prisoners we find that conversation with the prisoners we find that he communicated the fact to them. Ashcraft had a large sum of Confederate bills on his person, and suggested the plan of taking them from him and disposing of them for their own profit. This project was favorably received by Patton and Bethel, and they, by some specious pretence, got Stevens to likewise engage in the undertaking. Some way or other they got rather wary of the affair, and so they, partially, disclosing the arrangement to Lieut.

ergeant T. P. Thomas, of co. C, 50th O. V. I., obtained their company.

Jenkins and Thomas plainly saw something was in the wind, and made up their minds to see the thing through, but all the time supposed it was contraband property money.

When they came up with Haycraft and Ashcratt on the road Stevens got timid and fell in the rear, Lieutenant Jenkins halted them, and Sergeant Thomas asked Ashcraft if he had any papers or anything calculated to give aid and comfort to the rebels, or any con-cealed weapons? He denied the possession of any, but said he had some newspapers, and pulled out a number of copies of the Louisville pulled out a number of copies of the Louisville Democrat. This not satisfying Sergeant Thomas he proceeded to search him and found in a cloth sack, nicely constructed and placed next his skin, a number of packages of money, which, on examination, proved to contain $36,861 of Confederate scrip, mostly of the date of 1861. The whole party then started back toward Elizabethtown, when Patton demonded the money of Lunkins as he wanted demanded the money of Jenkins as he wanted to keep it until Monday morning, and, as there were five of the gang and only two soldiers, Jenkins thought it best to give it up. Patton and Bethel both then offered Jenkins without saying anything about it, but both refused the money, and then Patton gave the money to Stevens to keep until Monday morning. Thomas came to town and reported to Captain D. A. Ireland, of company C, Winlock, they proceeded to arrest Stevens, and took possession of the money. They spent the remainder of the night in examinspent the remainder of the night in examining Stevens, and sent out a squad under Lieut. C. Ritchie, of company C, and arrested Patton, while Capt. Ireland proceeded to Bethel's and arrested Asheraft, Haycraft, and Bethel. At an early hour Col. Strickland arrived in Elizabethtown and took charge of the matter, thus relieving Deputy Marshal Winlock and Capt. Ireland from further charge. Too much Capt. Ireland for their unremitting and earncapt. Iterand for their differentials and earnest labors in this case, and the gallantry of Sergeant Themas and Lieut. Jenkins in embarking on this hazardous expedition on the start, merit a handsome acknowledgment. Mr. Wheatley, the able and efficient tele operator at this place, also gave his assistance, and was constantly at his post, as we have ever found him, ready to co-operate with the military authorities in the despatch or reception of orders.

By this P. M. train Col. Strickland sends the prisoners and the money to Col. Mundy

THURSDAY, SEPT. 3, 1863

We understand that Governor Bramlette has selected Ephraim L. Vanwinkle, Esq., of Pulaski, as Secretary of State, Lieutenant-Colonel John Boyle, of the Kentucky Volunteers, as Adjutant General, and S. G. Sudduth, Esq, of Adair, as Quartermaster General. The selections are excellent ones. Mr. Vanwinkle was a Bell and Everett Elector on the part of the State at large in the last Presidential canvass, and is one of the ablest lawyers and one of the most eloquent advocates in Kentucky. He is undoubtedly among the foremost men of the State. Lieutenant-Colonel Boyle is a man of first-rate capacity, of fine acquirements, and of considerable experience in the business of the department at whose head he is placed. He will unquestionably make a capital Adjutant General. He is indeed full of the richest promise of every noble kind. Mr. Sudduth is a man of marked business talent and of undrooping energy. His abilities and his tastes combine to qualify him eminently for the office to which he is Yesterday Ex-Governor Robinson was escorted by a numerous committee of distin_ guished citizens to his beautiful home in the county of Scott. The graceful and heartfelt compliment was nobly deserved.

Governor Robinson both as a man and as a statesman is worthy of the brightest honors that Kentuckians can bestow. His administration of the government of the Commonwealth during the most critical period of our struggle with the rebellion has been marked throughout with singular fidelity and has been crowned with eminent success. It is not indeed too much to say, that, everything being considered, his administration has been crowned with unequalled success. Assuming the Executive office under circumstances that were unparalleled in the past and that will probably remain unparalleled in all time to come, he has performed the exceedingly complex and embarrassing duties of the position with a lofty singleness of purpose, with a force and sobriety of judgment, and with a generous devotion to the true interests of the Commonwealth and to the welfare of the Republic, that not only have commanded the hearty approval of the people, but have silenced the voice of faction. He in the discharge of his high trust has so acquitted himself that even calumny is hushed. Not "the gracious Duncan" was more "clear in his great office." That doctrine is not to be pleaded though we are beginning to recover something of our former position, it will require great care and prudence to prevent many of the evils under which we have labored from becoming permanent. It was foreseen by those who looked into the future condition of Louisville, when the rebellion broke out, that restrictions would necessarily be imposed upon our trade, and that vexatious delays must be the natural result of the potent demands of military necessity. To mitigate, correct, and avert these things as far as possible, a charter was obtained from the Legislature for a Board of Trade, but, despite the laborious exertions of a few individuals, its organization was protracted, its officers discouraged, and finally its meetings were altogether discontinued. During the past spring, however, at the earnest solicitation of various interests, mercantile, manufacturing, and mechanical, a call was made upon our business | in every legitimate mode by the Union men men to reorganize the Board, or rather to attempt to complete the delayed organization. the effort shall prove effectual. To secure this, it was determined to make an affirmation of loyalty a prerequisite of membership, and the constitution of the association was altered to carry out this determination. This was not accomplished without a struggle, which it was at one time thought might totally disband the Board, for several of its most zealous friends refused to submit to any such test, although they were almost daily in the habit of taking such oaths as were requisite to obtain permits for shipping goods. Under such discouragements, the members, who felt the importance of having a record of loyalty to enable them to present grievances to the constituted authorities with a probability of having them removed, redoubled their exertions to form a Board of Trade, and their success has been truly gratifying, as it now numbers about two hundred individuals and firms, and is constantly receiving accessions.

The unfortunate division of sentiment among our citizens on the policy of the test affirmation has of course weakened the resources of the Board and made it incumbent on a portion of the community to become the custodians of the interests of the entire business of | W. THE KILLING OF CAPT. MURPHY AT LEBA-We yesterday chronicled the death of Captain Murphy, of the Eighth Kentucky Infantry, at the hands of Col. Spalding, of the Thirty-seventh Kentucky. Lieut.-Col. W. O. Watts, of the Thirty-seventh, gives us the following version of the sad affair:

Col. Spalding had just brought in some prisoners on Monday evening, when he was approached by Captain Murphy in an insulting nanner and with a drawn pistol, complaining of the treatment by the Thirty-seventh to his men of the Eighth. The camps of the two regiments were situated about two miles and a half apart, and the camp of the Eighth Kentucky being nearest Lebanon, the members of the Thirty-seventh had to pass through the other's lines whenever occasion required them to go to town. Orders had been issued to the former not to let Colonel Spalding's men pass through its lines. This gave rise to the jealous feeling between the two regiments and brought about the difficulty. When approached by Captain Murphy, Colonel Spalding was unarmed, but told the Captain to shoot if he thought "it would be a brave act." The Captain did not then fire, but still held his pistol in his hands. He went to another part of the camp, his horse being led by a Lieutenant of his regiment, who was persuading him to desist, when Colonel Spalding ordered three of his soldiers to arrest him. They proceeded to do so, but before they could take hold of him he fired at Colonel Spalding, the pall just passing the left temple, without injury. The Colonel in the meantime had procured a weapon, and, without a moment's hesitation. shot Captain Murphy through the heart. The guards also fired, two shots hitting him, the other missing. Colonel Spalding was immediately placed under arrest by an order from General Boyle. A court of inquiry was sent down yesterday to investigate the affair which has terminated so unfortunately.

Lieutenant-Colonel Watts informs us that it is the universal verdict among both soldiers and citizens that the killing was done in selfdefence. He also states that Capt. Murphy was under the influence of liquor, and used the most insulting and ungentlemanly language towards Col. Spalding that he could possibly have employed. If the above is a true version of the affair, Col. Spalding will undoubtedly be released as soon as the matter undergo investigation.

the above was written, we are inned that the camp of the Thirty-seventh is within four hundred yards of town, and that the other camp is two miles and a half, and on the same road, consequently we are induced to believe that Lieut.-Col. Watts has unintentionally made some mistake in their location s given above.

ROSECRANS MOVING .- A letter from Cane Hill, Ala., dated at five o'clock on Sunday afternoon, says the Fifteenth Kentucky regiment had just received marching orders to start at eight o'clock. McCook's division crossed the Tennessee river on Saturday, the rebel pickets, sixty in number, giving themselves up without firing a shot. No great fighting is anticipated before our forces reach Rome. The rumor had been revived that Bragg was evacuating Chattanooga. It is hardly time for that, however, yet, as Burnside is not yet on his flank.

Wood's THEATRE-The Holmans.-Wood's Theatre was well filled last night, and the preentation of the plays was received with repeated outbursts of applause. The performance of this troupe is truly wonderful, when ve consider that they are but children, and he singing of Miss Sallie elicits more than ordinary interest. The bill to-night is the Daughter of the Regiment, a pas seul by the infant Julia, and the protean play of Mrs.

LOUISVILLE- THEATER-The Ghosts of Conway Castle .- The interest in this supernatural spectacle seems unabated, and the piece is received with demonstrations of satisfaction nightly. The audience last night was a very fashionable and appreciative one, and seemed highly delighted with the success of the play. Mr. Conway can safely congratulate himself upon his brilliant achievement. The Ghosts will appear again to-night and every evening until further notice.

The Grand Jury is sitting at Carrollton to-day for the trial of such persons as have been arrested and charged with being implicated in the bank robbery at that place. Ellis and Morgan, who were brought here, have been sent up by Col. Mundy, under guard, and will be presented before the Grand Jury. They hope to elicit information from them that will lead to important disclosures.

A man named John Carr was arrested n Tuesday night on a charge of passing counterfeit postage currency. The case was up before the Police Court yesterday morning, and was continued until this morning. About five hundred dollars of the spurious article was passed on Tuesday and Tuesday night in ent portions of the city by various per-

ALL OTHER MILLS COMBINED.

This mill is heavier than other mills of the same size, and the extra weight is placed at points so as to prevent the possibility of breakage, and all the brass journal-boxes can be taken out, cleaned, repaired, oiled, &c., and replaced without the least trouble of taking the mill to pieces (as is the case with all other mills which have not this improvement). The simplicity and neatness, combined with strength, speaks for itself. And all who have used this mill do not heart tate in saying it is the best mill in use.
